Dancers of the Wind seem to move with the breeze off the East River

Dancers of the Wind – Lower East Side

East River Park Promenade

On view through November 2013

This trio of brightly colored dancers by Gus & Lina Ocamposilva is located on the East River just south of the East 10th Street footbridge. From afar, they seem to move in the breeze but as you get closer you realize they're made of metal and not likely to be swayed. It's an enchanting illusion. Afterward, head to nearby Tompkins Square Park, where you'll find a mini pool and two playgrounds.
